Helping learners explore the world of work

Virtual Work Experience gives learners a flexible way to discover what working life within a business is like online, at their own pace, from wherever they are.

The programme introduces participants to different areas of Liberata, skills employers value, and roles that support a modern business.

It helps remove common obstacles to work experience, such as location, financial means and personal responsibilities, making it accessible for learners.

A practical opportunity for learners

Participants will:

- Explore different career pathways
- Build confidence and employability skills
- Understand the roles that support a modern business
- Learn through practical online activities
- Gain a certificate on completion

Who is it for:

- Learners aged 14 to 19+
- People exploring future study or career options
- Those returning to work
- Anyone looking for practical career insight

What is the Liberata Virtual Work Experience programme?

Learners can explore different parts of our business, how our teams operate, and how they support our customers, communities and colleagues.

Participants can explore our business areas:

- Business process
- Operations
- HR support
- Technology and business change
- Employability skills

How it works

The Virtual Work Experience programme is online and self-paced.

It takes around six to eight hours to complete and includes interactive activities, quizzes and practical tasks.

Participants can also access mentor insight from Liberata staff through a safe online environment, helping them understand different career journeys and the skills employers value.

Creating social value through accessible opportunity

Liberata's Virtual Work Experience programme gives customers and partners a practical way to support learners in their communities.

It is available to schools, colleges and community networks, helping more people access career insight wherever they are based.
